Media Information

CREDENTIALS: Working press credentials for Carolina home games can be obtained by contacting Rick Brewer in the Sports Information Office. Brewer's mailing address is P.O. Box 2126, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Requests are screened with care to insure a working pressbox. Children, spouses and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

FILING COPY: There are no Western Union facilities in the Carmichael Auditorium pressbox. The Athletic Department does furnish a number of telephones for writers to use in moving their copy. The Sports Information Office also has one telecopier which is available on a first-come, first-serve basis after each game. It is strongly suggested, however, that whenever possible writers bring their own telecopiers. This will allow all copy to be moved more quickly and will alleviate any deadline problems.

PRESSBOX SERVICES: Programs and statistics will be provided before each game. A play-by-play will be distributed at the end of each half. Complete halftime and final boxscores will be provided. Coaches' quotes will also be available.

Sandwiches and soft drinks are available in the pressbox.

INTERVIEWS: Player interviews can be arranged by contacting the Sports Information Office. Generally, these interviews will be set up before or after practice in Carmichael Auditorium.

RADIO NETWORK AND TV SHOW: The Tar Heel Sports Network is one of the largest and best basketball radio networks in the nation. The network is operated by Village Companies of Chapel Hill with Jim Heavner as the producer. Woody Durham will handle the play-by-play with Heavner adding color commentary.

The Carolina Basketball Show will be televised across the state of North Carolina each Sunday. Durham serves as emcee for this program which features Coach Dean Smith and game highlights.

1981-82 OUTLOOK

The return of three starters from last year's NCAA runner-up team should help North Carolina once again be a major force in college basketball during the 1981-82 season.

But, the Tar Heels have a lot of work to do if they are to successfully defend their Atlantic Coast Conference championship and again challenge for national honors.

Coach Dean Smith's team posted a 29-8 record last season, won the ACC Tournament and captured the NCAA West Regional before losing to Indiana in the national finals. Guard Jimmy Black, forward James Worthy and center Sam Perkins head a cast of nine returning lettermen off that great team.

However, four members of that team have graduated. Trying to offset those losses could be difficult.

"We had a great year last season," says Smith. "Even if all of our players were returning, it would be hard to duplicate that. Certainly, it's going to be a tremendous challenge trying to replace an outstanding senior class led by Al Wood."

Wood, Carolina's leading scorer for the past three seasons, was a first-team All-America last year and was the first senior selected in the NBA draft last spring. In addition to being a great offensive performer, Wood also was Carolina's top defensive player last year and a solid rebounder as well.

Also missing are guard Mike Pepper, who started every game last year; center Pete Budko, a starter until he suffered an ankle injury at mid-season; and reserve forward Eric Kenny. Like Wood, Pepper and Budko were selected in the NBA draft.

Still, the Tar Heels have the nucleus for another strong team. Worthy rates as a leading All-America candidate in his junior season, Black should be one of the nation's premier guards and Perkins showed all-star potential as a freshman.

Worthy, a 6-9, 219-pound forward from Gastonia, N.C., was a second-team All-ACC selection last year and was named to the U.S. Basketball Writers' all-district team. He averaged 14.2 points and 8.4 rebounds per game and was sensational down the stretch as Carolina drove to the NCAA title game. He accomplished all that despite playing with a metal rod and three screws in his right ankle, the result of an injury in his freshman season. Those were removed early last summer and Worthy should be even better this year.

"James was playing his best basketball at the end of last season," says Smith. "We expect him to show even more improvement this year. He certainly has great natural ability. With continued effort and a year of experience behind him, he could become our best defensive player."

Black, a 6-3, 162-pound senior from the Bronx, N.Y., had an outstanding season. He led the Tar Heels in assists with 188 and steals with 64, averaged 7.3 points per game and did an excellent job of running the Carolina offense. Even better things are expected of him this year.

"We feel Jimmy will be even better defensively this season," says Smith. "Obviously he is a great passer, but he's also proven he can hit the ouside shot with regularity."

Improvement is also being counted on from Perkins, a 6-9, 224-pound sophomore from Latham, N.Y. Perkins averaged 14.9 points and 7.8 rebounds per game last year, while shooting 62.6 percent from the floor. He was a runaway winner in voting for the ACC Rookie of the Year and also was named the Most Valuable Player in the ACC Tournament.

"Sam is a tremendous inside scoring threat," says Smith. "He needs to get a little stronger in order to be a better rebounder. He made rapid improvement last year and we hope that will continue."

In addition to these three, the Tar Heels also return two other players who saw considerable action last year. They are Matt Doherty, a 6-8, 210-pound swingman from East Meadow, N.Y., and Jim Braddock, a 6-2, 171-pound junior from Chattanooga, Tenn.

Despite missing nine games in the first half of the season with a broken thumb, Doherty made good progress for a freshman. Capable of playing guard or forward, he was the team's sixth man. Matt averaged 6.0 points and 3.0 rebounds per game and finished third on the squad in assists. He was brilliant in the NCAA West Regional, scoring 28 points in two games and hitting nine of 12 shots from the floor.

Braddock played in all 37 games. He did a good job of subbing for Black at point guard when needed.

Carolina is also counting on improvement from Chris Brust, a 6-9 senior from Babylon, N.Y., and Jeb Barlow, a 6-8 senior from Fuquay-Varina, N.C. Brust is likely to be the top reserve behind Worthy and Perkins at the post positions. Other backup help there could come from 6-11½ sophomore Timo Makkonen from Lahti, Finland; 6-10 freshman John Brownlee of Forth Worth, Tex.; and 6-11 freshman Warren Martin of Axton, Va.

With those players at the post spots, Barlow has been shifted to small forward where he might contend for a starting job. Also in the small forward-big guard picture are Doherty; Cecil Exum, a 6-6 sophomore from Dudley, N.C.; Dean Shaffer, a 6-4 sophomore from Durham, N.C.; Mike Jordan, a 6-5 freshman from Wilmington, N.C.; and Buzz Peterson, a 6-3½ freshman from Asheville, N.C. Black could also be used here in some situations.

Lynwood Robinson, a 6-1 freshman from Mt. Olive, N.C., will battle Black, Braddock and Peterson for playing time at point guard.

In fact, freshmen could play an important role in the Tar Heel season. Smith is counting on his newcomers to supply valuable reserve strength.

"We will still lean heavily on our returning players for the major contributions," says Smith. "However, we need some of our freshmen to develop quickly and give us depth.

"Much has been said about this incoming class. I think our freshmen do have potential. But, they need much work defensively and must develop the ability to play with other good players."

Defense, of course, has been the key to Carolina's great basketball success and that is what Smith will emphasize in pre-season practice.

"Our goals are to become a strong defensive team and a better rebounding team," says Smith. "The loss of Wood and Budko will definitely hurt our rebounding. However, the experience our returning players gained last year should help us become better at establishing rebounding position.

"We will again be a good offensive team. We will miss the outside shooting of Wood and Pepper, but we're confident Black, Doherty and Braddock can help us there.

"Our main concerns are having our team play together and play with the same effort of last year's group. We must also be hungry. We can't feel satisfied with what we did last year."

Leadership will be important in that area and that's where Carolina will especially miss the enthusiastic Wood. Black, Brust and Barlow must shoulder the leadership responsibilities.

This Carolina team will face another difficult schedule. The Tar Heels play 15 games against teams which competed in post-season tournaments last year. That schedule includes games against a veteran Kentucky squad, the consensus choice as the number one team in the country in the pre-season last year; Virginia, the nation's top-ranked team much of last season; and Tulsa, the National Invitation Tournament champion.

"Teams coming from the Final Four generally receive a lot of pre-season attention the following year," says Smith. "I imagine we will get some of that so everyone will be ready for us. We will have to be mentally prepared for every game."

The Tar Heels will be trying to uphold an amazing basketball tradition in the 1981-82 season. Carolina has finished first in the ACC regular-season race nine times in the last 15 years and second on the other six occasions. In those 15 years, Carolina has won either the regular-season or tournament championship 11 times. In addition, Smith's teams have appeared in a national post-season tournament each of those 15 years. The Tar Heels have reached the Final Four six times in this stretch.

Carolina Basketball Is Something Special

Carolina basketball! The words almost explode. The last minute victories; those compromises with defeat; the electricity of anticipation. Carolina basketball has created a binding force for the people of our Old North State - not just students and alumni - but for people everywhere from Manteo to Murphy as Our Team strives for another victory, another championship.

What has become in these Dean Smith years the tradition of Carolina basketball is something that reflects properly much of what we want The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to be.

Carolina basketball is played hard, played well and played honestly. Young men who have represented Carolina on the team have gone on to the professional league, but others have become physicians, lawyers, ministers, businessmen, have entered many walks of life. They have represented their University well... as alumni, holders of degrees. They not only have played here, they received their educations here. That is the tradition of Carolina basketball—the student/athlete.

Intercollegiate athletics has an important place in today's universities. Of course, it provides a rallying point for alumni, students, faculty, staff and friends to help focus their affection for this institution. In addition, it continues to provide a means for young men and women to receive a college education. We hear too often about the abuses of athletics, about athletes not required to attend classes, about athletes who leave school at the end of their final season without degrees. We hear about the so-called hypocrisy of intercollegiate athletics. We hear little about the positive side of college sports.

The Carolina basketball program is recognized as a winning program, but it is much more. Since Coach Smith's arrival in 1962, some 114 of his players have received degrees. Other universities can cite similar experiences but how little we hear about the positive influence of intercollegiate athletics in higher education. How little we hear of the men and women in the minor sports who have played their way into a scholarship-aided education and have gone on to productive, useful lives largely because they did have some ability in sports.

At Carolina, we have kept sports in a constructive perspective. Academics come first. Academics must come first at a University. Our coaches are teachers who help mold young people in the rigors of competition and discipline, two factors in life where lessons learned on the playing fields are lessons that will be drawn upon for many years. I believe we have been successful in this down through the years.

Tradition and history are very important in Chapel Hill. We will not dwell on what was, our concerns are mainly on what will be. This University has a long reputation of excellence in teaching, research and public service. Excellence also is a tradition when Carolina teams enter the fields and arenas of competition with other universities. Our athletes carry with them that requirement of excellence. At Chapel Hill our dedication continues to be the education and nurturing of the whole person and sport is a vital part of life and society. We expect no less of our student/athletes than that they take from us what we can give... an education befitting the Carolina tradition of service to our state, our nation, our society.

These young men and women of our varsity teams play today, so that they may help all of us tomorrow.

Christopher C. Fordham III
Chancellor

Christopher C. Fordham III

Dr. Christopher C. Fordham III is the sixth chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

A Greensboro native and Carolina alumnus, Fordham first joined the Carolina faculty in 1958 and was vice chancellor for health affairs before becoming chancellor in 1980. He also is former dean of the Carolina School of Medicine, and former dean of the School of Medicine and vice president for medicine of the University of Georgia.

A member of the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences, Fordham is a diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine, a distinguished service member of the Association of American Medical Colleges and a fellow of the American College of Physicians. He is past chairman of both the AAMC National Council of Deans and the Southern Regional Deans.

In 1981 he was honored with distinguished service awards from both the N.C. Hospital Association and the N.C. Academy of General Dentistry.

Fordham's actions as an administrator have had a profound impact on health care in North Carolina. While he was dean of the School of Medicine, the University initiated its statewide Area Health Education Centers program, which has become a national model as an educational approach to improving the distribution of physicians and other health care professionals.

Fordham was born Nov. 28, 1926, the son and grandson of Greensboro druggists. It was in his father's drugstore that he first became interested in medicine. He enrolled in Carolina in 1944 and graduated with a Certificate in Medicine in 1949. He earned his M.D. in 1951 from Harvard University.

Athletic Director John Swofford

John Swofford, a former Tar Heel football player, is beginning his second year as director of athletics at the University of North Carolina.

Swofford became athletic director on May 1, 1980. He was named to the position by Chancellor Christopher Fordham, replacing Bill Cobey who had resigned to pursue public office.

Swofford's first year on the job was a most successful one. The Tar Heel football team went 11-1 and was ranked ninth and tenth in the final wire service polls; the basketball team reached the NCAA championship game; the lacrosse team captured the NCAA title in that sport; and Carolina tied for first in the race for the Carmichael Cup, symbolic of overall athletic excellence in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

In addition, Swofford's first year as athletic director was busy off the field, too. Carolina began raising funds for a new Student Activities Center, a $30,000,000 complex which will include a 22,000-seat basketball arena; the school's tennis bubble for indoor play was completed; a halfway house was constructed at Finley Golf Course; three new holes were created at Finley; dressing rooms were renovated at Boshamer Stadium; the Educational Foundation staff was bolstered; Carolina hosted the ACC Baseball Tournament and its own invitational golf tournament; and a new five-year radio contract was signed with Village Companies of Chapel Hill.

The upcoming year promises to be just as full of activity. Swofford plans to begin construction of a new field complex which will include permanent home fields for field hockey and softball and practice areas for the lacrosse and soccer teams; Carolina's astroturf football practice field will be replaced; the University will host the AIAW National Soccer Championships and the NCAA Golf Tournament; and discussions on the possible expansion of Boshamer Stadium will be held.

These accomplishments and plans for the future are a good indication Swofford is well aware of the problems facing intercollegiate athletics and how to cope with them. But, Chancellor Fordham knew that when he named him athletic director.

"John Swofford is a bright and energetic young administrator with an abundance of enthusiasm for Carolina athletics," said the Chancellor at the time. "He brings imagination, talent and experience into a position that is very important to the University. I am confident that he will do well in this demanding new role."

That confidence was echoed by Football Coach Dick Crum and Basketball Coach Dean Smith.

"I'm delighted at the choice," said Crum a year ago. "John has everything involving athletics at an academically-oriented university in the proper perspective. That's what we need."

"John will be an excellent athletic director," added Smith. "I'm glad the choice came from within the University as we have had good continuity through the years. John is the type of young man we need in intercollegiate athletics."

Swofford gives the credit for Carolina's recent successes to the people around him.

"We have an outstanding coaching administrative and clerical staff, and with their help, our primary goal will be to continue the tradition of integrity and excellence that has been the trademark of Carolina athletics," he says. "Our athletic program is a part of a great university. It is a special place and we will strive to reflect her values and character.

"We will continue our commitment to a strong overall program and we will continually strive to operate on the principle that the student-athletes who are participants in our various sports are our greatest assets. We must be committed to their positive development as individuals while they are a part of our athletic program."

A native of North Wikesboro, N.C., Swofford first came to Carolina as a Morehead Scholar in 1967. He graduated in 1971 with an A.B. in psychology and industrial relations.

He played quarterback and defensive back on Tar Heel football teams in 1969, 1970 and 1971. Those last two teams went to the Peach Bowl and Gator Bowl. He tied a then-school record against Vanderbilt in 1969 by throwing three touchdown passes in one game.

Swofford was named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll and Who's Who in College Athletics. He also served as president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes on campus.

In 1973 he earned a masters in athletic administration at Ohio University. In his time there Swofford served as a graduate assistant to the assistant business manager of athletics.

From 1973 to 1976 he was athletic ticket manager and assistant to the director of athletic facilities and finance at the University of Virginia. His duties in that job included directing all ticket sales, advertising and promotions. He also handled game contract settlements, stadium and coliseum operations and team travel arrangements.

He returned to Carolina in May, 1976 as assistant athletic director and business manager, handling all the athletic department's business affairs. Among his many other responsibilities were handling fund-raising affairs, team travel and the athletic dining hall. He also coordinated sports camps.

Although he remained assistant athletic director, Swofford dropped the business manager title and was named assistant executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation in January, 1979. In that job he was in charge of the overall financial structure of the athletic department. His position with the Educational Foundation involved general office procedures, membership services and fund-raising.

Swofford is a member of the National Association of Collegiate Athletic Directors and is on the Board of Directors of the Ohio University Athletic Administration Program. He is a member of the Board of Directors of North Carolina National Bank and this spring was named one of the Outstanding Young Men of America. He is chairman of the ACC Soccer, Lacrosse and Women's Liaison committees. He also serves on the ACC Bowl Committee. He is also on the administrative board at University Methodist Church.

A regular jogger, Swofford enjoys reading and tennis. He is married to the former Becky Owens of North Wilkesboro. They have two children, Autumn and Chad.

Tar Heel Tradition

Three national championships, four national players-of-the-year, a host of All-Americas and one of the best winning percentages in the history of the game.

Those are just some of the reasons the University of North Carolina has one of the greatest traditions in college basketball. There is little wonder that basketball is a very special sport on the Carolina campus.

Since the sport began here in 1911, Carolina has posted a record of 1,229 wins against only 479 losses. Sixty-one of the school's 71 teams have had winning records.

Carolina is one of only a few schools which have won 1,000 games. In fact, Kentucky and Carolina rank one-two in all-time victories. The Tar Heels and the Wildcats also have the best won-loss percentages in history.

Carolina is one of only six schools to capture both a National Collegiate Athletic Association championship and a National Invitation Tournament title. The Tar Heels won the NCAA crown in 1957 with a perfect 32-0 record and then swept the NIT in 1971. Carolina also was voted national champion in 1924 with a 26-0 record.

Since the NCAA Tournament was first played, Carolina has been one of the most dominant teams in the game. Carolina and Ohio State have each made eight appearances in the NCAA semi-finals. Only UCLA with 13 has ever made more.

The Tar Heels have won seven NCAA regional titles, including six eastern championships. No one else has won more than three eastern crowns.

Despite the University's long and storied basketball past, the sport has become even more popular here since Dean Smith became the head coach. During the last 15 years Carolina and UCLA have won more games than any other schools in the nation.

Carolina has dominated the Atlantic Coast Conference in this period, winning the league's regular-season title nine times and finishing second on the other six occasions. This 15-year stretch of finishing first or second in the league standings has never been equalled by any school in any conference.

The Tar Heels have played in a national post-season tournament each of the past 15 years. The 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1975, 1977, 1979 and 1981 teams won ACC Tournament championships and advanced into NCAA play. The Tar Heels won NCAA regional titles in 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1977 and 1981 and went on to the Final Four. The 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974 teams went to the NIT in New York.

Thus, no freshman class since 1963 has missed a post-season tournament at Carolina.

In the last 15 years Carolina has won 370 games and lost just 96. That's roughly an average of 25-6 a season, one of the most amazing marks in intercollegiate athletics.

The Tar Heels have finished in one of the wire service's top 10 polls 11 times in the last 15 years. Six times the Tar Heels have finished the year ranked as one of the top four teams in America. Only UCLA has been there more often in this stretch.

Although the Tar Heels have gained a lot of notoriety for the four-corners offense they use late in games, they actually rank as one of the nation's highest-scoring teams in the last 15 years. Carolina runs one of the best fast breaks in college basketball, averaging 82.9 points per game in this 15-year stretch.

However, the key to Carolina's success may be its changing man-to-man defenses. The Tar Heels mix their innovative and gambling scramble defense with their more conservative pressure man-to-man. In fact, the defense is so effective it actually helps the offense. Steals and easy layups have accounted for many Tar Heel points in recent years. That's one of the reasons Carolina has the best shooting percentage of any team in America in the last 15 seasons. Carolina has hit at least 52 percent of its shots from the floor for an incredible 11 consecutive years. That percentage, of course, has also been helped by the unselfishness of the Tar Heel players in selecting only the best shots.

Carolina has managed these feats against the toughest opposition in the nation. The Tar Heel schedule is annually ranked one of the most difficult in the country with only nine games per year being played in Carmichael Auditorium.

Carolina's fame in basketball has even spread abroad. During the last decade Carolina twice played in the International Christmas Tournament in Madrid and also competed in a tournament in London.

Tournament play is nothing new for the Tar Heels, however. Carolina has won 43 tournament championships over the years. The Tar Heels have competed in such tournaments as the Far West Classic in Portland, the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu, The Holiday Festival in New York City, the Great Alaskan Shootout in Anchorage and the Sugar Bowl Classic in New Orleans.

Carolina has had at least one player on each of the last five U.S. Olympic teams. Larry Brown starred on the 1964 team which won the Gold Medal in Tokyo, Charlie Scott was a member of the 1968 championship team at Mexico City and Bobby Jones played on the 1972 team in Munich.

In the 1976 Games at Montreal, Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford all played key roles in the U.S. sweep of the Gold Medal. Al Wood starred on the 1980 U.S. team which posted a winning record in a series of games against NBA players.

There have been dozens of All-Americas at Carolina. Thirteen of them have played in the Dean Smith Era alone—Billy Cunningham, Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Charlie Scott, Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Phil Ford, Mike O'Koren and Al Wood.

In the last decade UCLA and Carolina had more consensus first and second-team All-Americas than any other schools.

In 1978 Ford became the fourth Tar Heel to be named National Player of the Year. The others were Jack Cobb in 1926, George Glamack in 1941 and Lennie Rosenbluth in 1957.

The crowds which turn out to see the Tar Heels play are proof of the sport's popularity in Chapel Hill. Every game is a sellout in Carmichael Auditorium. Students sleep at the auditorium the night before they are to pick up tickets just to be sure they get into the games. Educational Foundation members who contribute large amounts of money to the athletic program are limited to just two tickets. Faculty members have to go on waiting lists to get into games.

Even the Tar Heel intrasquad games are 10,000 sellouts. In fact, this year's game will be televised across the state of North Carolina. Most regular-season games are also televised. Three Tar Heel games will be nationally televised by NBC with several others being broadcast across the country on cable.

Everywhere the Tar Heels play they are a big hit. Just four years ago Carolina drew the largest college basketball crowd in Madison Square Garden history for a game with Rutgers.

It's obvious that nothing could be finer than basketball at Carolina.

Carolina Basketball-International Style

When Al Wood was named to the 1980 U. S. Olympic Basketball Team it marked the fifth straight time Carolina has been represented on that squad.

That amazing Olympic streak is the highlight of a long line of Tar Heel successes on the international basketball scene. In recent years Carolina players and teams have traveled everywhere from the Great Wall of China to Red Square in Moscow to the beaches of Waikiki.

Still, Carolina's greatest impact on the international game has come in Olympic competition. Wood was one of the stars of the most recent U..S. team which compiled a 5-1 record against professional competition. The Americans, of course, did not compete in the 1980 Summer Games because of the Olympic boycott.

The first Tar Heel Olympian was Larry Brown, a backcourt star of the early 1960's. Brown played on the winning 1964 U.S. team in Tokyo. Charlie Scott starred on the 1968 squad which swept the Olympic title in Mexico City. Bobby Jones was a member of the 1972 team at Munich.

Four Tar Heel players—Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Walter Davis and Phil Ford—were on the 1976 Olympic Team. All played key roles in the Americans' six-game sweep of the Summer Games.

Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith coached the U.S. team that year and was assisted by Bill Guthridge, his top aide at Carolina.

Playing as a team and stressing defense, the Americans routed Italy in their first game. After edging a fired-up Puerto Rican team on two clutch free throws by Ford, the U.S. then whipped Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Canada in the semi-finals.

After Yugoslavia had beaten the Soviet Union in the other semi-final, the Americans then defeated the Yugoslavs again for the Gold Medal.

While the Olympics rank at the top of Carolina's international and overseas competition, there have been plenty of other star performances.

Carolina players have been prominent in the last three Pan American Games. Mike O'Koren was co-captain of the 1979 U.S. team which won the Gold Medal in Puerto Rico. Tommy LaGarde starred on the 1975 U.S. team and Robert McAdoo played on the winning American team in 1971.

In addition to his Pan American play, O'Koren also was a starting forward on the U.S. team which took part in the Gregarian Cup competition in Moscow in 1978.

LaGarde was a member of the U.S. Continental Cup team which played games in the Soviet Union, Greece, Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe in 1975.

Dennis Wuycik played on the U.S. pre-Olympic team which toured Europe in 1971.

In the spring of 1973, a Russian national team came to America, playing a U.S. all-star team. Two of the biggest stars in that series were George Karl and Bobby Jones.

Later that summer Karl became one of the first Americans ever to go to Mainland China. He was a member of a U.S. basketball team which played there and again was one of the American heroes.

In the fall of 1973 Kupchak played on the U.S. team which won the basketball championship at the World University Games in Moscow.

Carolina took its entire team to Madrid, Spain in 1971 and played in the International Christmas Tournament there. The Tar Heels swept past teams from Brazil and Spain before facing Real Madrid, the European champion, in the finals. In a game televised across Europe, the Tar Heels gave one of their finest performances to win the championship.

Carolina returned to Madrid in 1974, but was edged by the veteran Real Madrid team in the finals. The Tar Heels did pull a stunning upset, however, beating the powerful Cuban National Team on a last-second shot by Davis.

Another of Carolina's greatest efforts came in 1972. Although not actually leaving the country, the Tar Heels did fly from the mainland to win the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu. With Karl, Kupchak and Jones leading the way, Carolina defeated Louisville for the championship there. Ford and O'Koren paced the Tar Heels to another Rainbow triumph in 1977.

In August of 1979 Jimmy Black and James Worthy were chosen to play on the U.S. Junior World Cup Team in Brazil.

Tar Heel players have also made big names for themselves playing professional basketball in Europe. Doug Moe had the most success, three times being selected European Player of the Year. Other Tar Heels who have played in Europe include Dave Chadwick, Kim Huband, Craig Corson, Donn Johnston, John O'Donnell, Donald Washington, Ed Stahl, Bill Chambers, Bruce Buckley, Tom Zaliagiris, Geff Crompton, Randy Wiel, Jeff Wolf, Rich Yonakor and Pete Budko.

A walk-on last season... Came to Carolina without a scholarship last year from Louisburg Junior College, but earned one with his hard work and dedication... A good, hard-nosed competitor... The year he spent in the system last season should be a big help to him... Expected to contend for playing time in the frontcourt... Could play any of the frontcourt positions... Fundamentally sound... Played on the Blue Team last year... Saw action in 30 games... Did a good job in home-court win over Duke with four points and a season-high four rebounds in nine minutes of action... Scoring high was six in a home game against Georgia Tech... Had turned down a full scholarship offer to come to Carolina on his own... Coached at Louisburg by Enid Drake... Played for Bill Watkins at Fuquay-Varina High School... An excellent student in business administration.

One of the premier point guards in college basketball... Had an excellent junior season... Did a fine job of directing the Tar Heel attack... Has great court awareness and savvy... Handed out 188 assists... Phil Ford is the only Carolina player ever to have more in a single season... A good defender last year who should be even better in his senior season... Possesses fine quickness and speed... Averaged 7.3 points a game last year... Shot 53.3 percent from the field and 78.8 percent from the free throw line... However, he doesn't have to score a lot of points to be effective and valuable... Graded out as the team's best defensive player by the coaching staff in seven games last year, including two in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament... On 15 occasions he had the team's best assist-error ratio... Led the team in drawing charges 15 times... Being counted on as a leader on and off the court... Although it's tough to compare players in a team game like basketball, he played very well in head-to-head matchups with Frank Johnson, U.S. Reed, Isiah Thomas and Jerry Eaves... Scored a career-high 16 points in a home-court win over Maryland... Played brilliantly in an early-season win over Rutgers although he did not score a point... Had a career-high nine assists that night... Was sensational against N.C. State in the opening round of the ACC Tournament... Scored nine points on four-for-four shooting from the floor, had four steals and dished out seven assists... Had 18 assists in the ACC Tournament and was named second-team all-tournament... In five NCAA Tournament games he had 27 assists... Had his outstanding junior season after suffering a neck injury the previous summer... Broke a vertebra in his neck in a June, 1980 automobile accident... Made a rapid recovery, however, and was ready for pre-season practice... Had seen a great deal of action as a backup to Dave Colescott in his first two years at Carolina... Played in 27 of 29 games as a sophomore after getting in all 29 as a freshman... Averaged 5.0 points per game as a sophomore after scoring at a 2.2 clip as a freshman... Now has 312 assists in his career, the sixth-highest total in school history... Had a career-high six steals in an overtime win over Rutgers at Madison Square Garden during his sophomore season... Hit eight of nine clutch free throws that season in a victory at Duke... As a freshman he made three free throws in the last 38 seconds to clinch a 74-68 win over the Blue Devils... Hit two foul shots with 18 seconds to play the following day to seal a victory over Arkansas... Named to the U.S. Junior World Cup Team in the summer of 1979... Was not well-known nationally in high school, but was always considered an excellent prospect by the Carolina coaching staff... Coached by Tom Murray at Cardinal Hayes High.

Being counted on as one of the team leaders in his senior season... Should see extensive duty as a reserve in the frontcourt... Capable of playing behind either James Worthy or Sam Perkins... Does the small things well... Best screener on the team... Boxes out well... An unselfish, team player... Scored a career-high six points in a win over St. Joseph's last season... Had a career-high six rebounds in a home-court win over Georgia Tech... Had an important tip-in in 58-57 victory over Wake Forest in the ACC Tournament... Played a great deal in overtime game at Duke because of an injury to Worthy... Saw action in 35 of 37 games last year... Had seen limited action in his first two seasons at Carolina... Suffered a broken foot during his senior year of high school and had a very slow recovery... Eventually had to have corrective surgery upon his arrival at Carolina... That injury slowed his progress as he missed all of pre-season practice his freshman year... Played in only four games that season... Appeared in 17 games as a sophomore... Coaches feel his problem in getting playing time in the past relates directly to his injuries... He has been behind the other players in preparation because he has missed so much practice time... Needs to get off to a good start this season to build confidence... Played for Roy Koebel and Greg Walsh at Babylon High.

A strong contender for a starting spot in the backcourt opposite Jimmy Black... Capable of playing either guard position... Played mainly at point guard last year, but did see some action at big guard as well... Improved defensively throughout the season and should be even better this year... Regarded as a fine shooter... Once made 257 consecutive free throws in practice... Has good court savvy... Possesses excellent ballhandling skills... A hard worker in the off-season... One of the leaders in Carolina's weight and running program... One of the team's strongest players... Saw action in all 37 games a year ago... Played a great game in an 86-64 win over Louisville... Had four steals, two assists and a career-high 10 points against the Cardinals... Also did an exceptionally good job in a victory over Georgetown... Although he only scored two points, he played a fine game against Kansas State in the NCAA West Regional... Finished the year with 97 points for a 2.6 average... Won the team free throw shooting award with a percentage of 82.6... Played in 29 games as a freshman... Got most of his action that year as a member of Carolina's "Blue Team"... Coached by Jimmy Duke at Baylor Prep.

52 James Worthy

Height: 6-9 Class: Junior
Weight: 219 Hometown: Gastonia, N.C.

Leading All-America candidate in his junior season... Has made all of the pre-season all-star teams... Had an outstanding sophomore season... Averaged 14.2 points per game and 8.4 rebounds... Third in the Atlantic Coast Conference in rebounding... His 100 assists and 48 steals were both the second-highest totals on the Carolina team... Second-team All-ACC and all-district... Accomplished all that despite playing with two screws and a metal rod in his right ankle... They had been inserted after he broke his ankle midway through his freshman season... The metal was removed after last season and Worthy should be better than ever this year... Doctors feel his ankle is in its best shape since his junior year of high school... The ankle bothered him off and on last year, but he only missed one game—the regular-season finale at Duke—and that was because of a back injury suffered at Georgia Tech... Was sensational in the ACC Tournament and the NCAA West Regional, making the all-star team in both... Had 19 points and eight rebounds in the ACC championship game against Maryland... Did a great job against Utah's Danny Vranes in the West Regional when Carolina was in a man-to-man defense... Also had 15 points, 10 rebounds and six assists against the Redskins... The six assists matched his career high set as a freshman against Detroit... Named to the all-tournament team at the Great Alaskan Shootout... Had 13 rebounds and 17 points in the semi-finals there against Georgetown... Also an all-tournament selection at the Big Four Tournament... Scored a career-high 26 points against Duke in the opening round of that tourney... Had a season-high 14 rebounds in a home-court loss to Virginia... Career high in rebounds was 16 against Detroit in his freshman season... Excellent rebounder... Great passer... Explosive around the basket... Still improving as a defensive player... With his physical skills he could become one of Carolina's best defenders... Versatile enough to play any of the team's five positions... Started the first 14 games of his freshman season before suffering his broken ankle in a home-court game with Maryland... Missed the rest of the season... Had gotten off to a great start... Was averaging 12.5 points and shooting 58.7 percent from the floor at the time of his injury... Also was Carolina's leading shot-blocker at that time and was averaging 7.4 rebounds per game... Was brilliant in a road victory at Indiana with 18 points and nine rebounds... Hit four of five shots, scored 12 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in the first game of his career— a Big Four Tournament win over N.C. State... Played on the Junior World Cup Team in Brazil in the summer of 1979... Would have been a candidate for the Olympic Team in 1980 if he had not been injured... Played for Larry Rhodes at Ashbrook High in Gastonia.

Dean Smith
Head Basketball Coach

The head basketball coach at the University of North Carolina is Dean Smith, a man with one of the greatest records and reputations in the history of the college game.

In 20 seasons at Carolina, Smith's teams have won 436 games and lost only 143. That's a percentage of .753, the seventh best mark in history of anyone who has coached at least 15 years on the Division I level.

The only men ahead of him are simply Clair Bee, Adolph Rupp, John Wooden, Phog Allen, George Keogan and Frank Keaney. Of that group, only Rupp and Wooden have coached since 1960.

Under Smith, Carolina has reached the NCAA semi-finals six times in the last 15 years. Only UCLA has been to the Final Four more times in that period. In fact, the only coach in history who has made more Final Four Appearances than Smith is Wooden. Rupp, like Smith, also got there six times, five of those occasions coming after the NCAA set up regional qualifying tournaments in 1946. Thus, Smith's six regional championships rank second only to Wooden's 12.

In the last 15 years Carolina has won the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship nine times and finished second the other six years. No other school in any conference has ever finished first or second in its league standings for such a long period.

The Tar Heels have won eight ACC Tournament titles in this same stretch. In fact, Carolina has won either the ACC regular-season or tournament championship 11 times in the past 15 seasons.

After Smith took Carolina to the NCAA championship game in 1977, he was named National Coach of the Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches. In 1979 he was selected as the country's top coach by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association and Basketball Weekly.

Perhaps Smith's most famous accomplishment came in 1976 when he guided the United States Basketball Team to a sweep of the Summer Olympic Games in Montreal. In only a few weeks he molded a college all-star team into a close-knit unit. Still the Americans faced the tremendous challenge of competing against international teams which had been playing together for years.

But, with Smith emphasizing a tough pressure defense and fast-breaking team play on offense, the United States regained the Gold Medal it had lost in the controversial 1972 Games.

Four of Smith's Tar Heels played key roles in the Olympic triumph—Mitch Kupchak, Phil Ford, Walter Davis and Tommy LaGarde. In fact, Smith has had players on each of the past five Olympic teams. Larry Brown starred in the 1964 Games at Tokyo; Charlie Scott helped win the championship in Mexico City in 1968; Bobby Jones played on the 1972 team at Munich; and Al Wood was a member of the 1980 U.S. squad.

Smith's Olympic victory ranks as another in a long line of remarkable accomplishments. His amazing successes and integrity recently resulted in him becoming one of the few active coaches ever inducted into the state of North Carolina's Sports Hall of Fame.

Smith's record in the last 15 years is 370-96, a percentage of .794. That gives his teams an average record of 25-6 in that period. Smith's teams have now won 25 games or more nine times. The only coaches in history with more 25-win seasons are Wooden with 11 and Rupp with 10.

Carolina has been to a national post-season tournament for 15 consecutive years. The Tar Heels won the National Invitation Tournament in 1971.

How does Smith work all this magic?

It's a combination of things. He has tremendous rapport with his players, he is a master teacher and his style of play gets amazing results.

Former Marquette Coach Al McGuire may have put it best when he said, "If anyone was ever born to be a college coach, it's Dean Smith. He's the Jack Armstrong type person.

"Besides myself, I'd pick Dean, John Wooden and Bobby Knight as the nation's top collegiate coaches."

Carolina teams under Smith are known for unselfish play, great teamwork and a tenacious man-to-man defense. Although the Tar Heels specialize in a whirlwind, fast-breaking offense, they also have a disciplined attack and always rank among the national leaders in field goal percentage.

In an NCAA study of the 1970's, Carolina ranked first in the nation in field goal accuracy and offensive efficiency, fifth in scoring and third in scoring margin.

That ranking of fifth in scoring is really no surprise. Although Smith is sometimes kidded about coaching "slowdowns" because of the four corners offense he uses late in some games, his teams usually rank among the scoring leaders.

Among Smith's many innovations are his run-and-jump defense, the mixing of pressure defenses, the point zone, team huddles at the foul line, the free lance passing game, the four corners offense and the scramble defense which was so effective with the Dudley-Bradley-led defenses of the late Seventies.

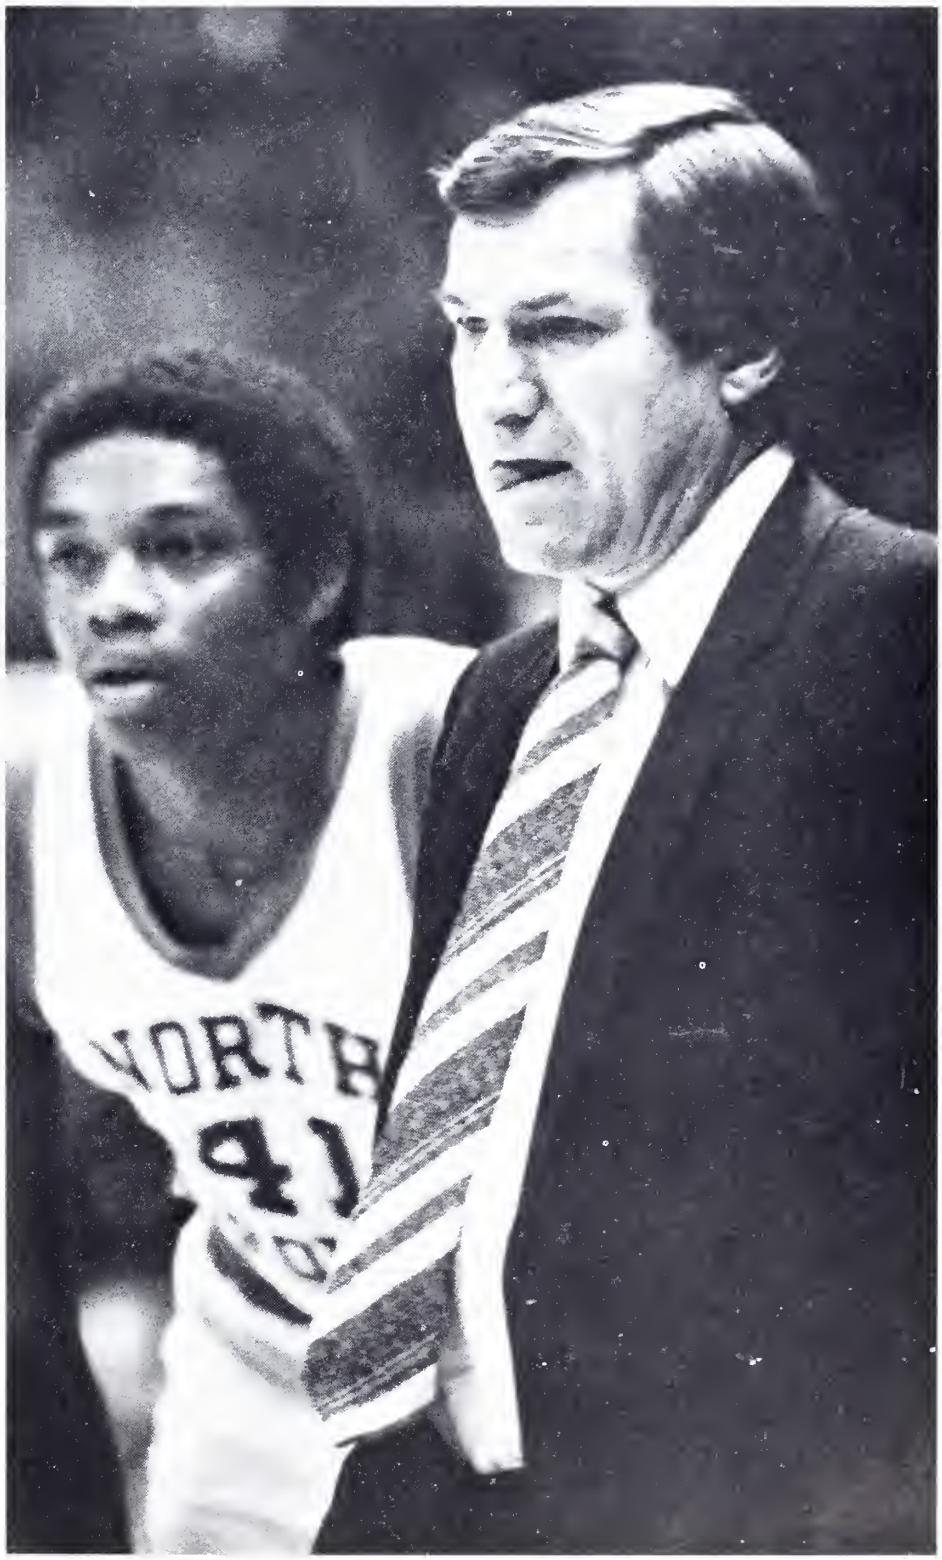
"He is the most innovative, creative coach in college basketball," said South Florida Coach Lee Rose about Smith last season. "Nobody is better. I've been coaching 20 years and I don't say that flippantly."

Smith's offensive and defensive schemes are constantly studied by other coaches across the country and around the world. Many college, professional and foreign coaches visit the Tar Heel campus during the off-season to get advice from Smith. His high school coaching clinic is one of the most popular in the nation.

Smith's success at Carolina has been shared by those around him. Two of his assistants, Kenny Rosemond and John Lotz, left Carolina to take head coaching jobs in the Southeastern Conference. Another former aide, Larry Brown, is head coach of the New Jersey Nets. Smith's current assistants, Bill Guthridge and Eddie Fogler, have turned down head coaching jobs at major universities to remain in Chapel Hill. Smith, himself, has been offered numerous other coaching jobs, both on the college and professional level.

That certainly should be no surprise. In the last 15 years alone, 24 of Smith's players have gone on to play professional basketball in this country and many others have played professionally in Europe. His star player last season, Al Wood, was the first senior selected in the NBA draft last spring. Two of the last four rookies-of-the-year in the NBA have been Carolina graduates—Walter Davis and Phil Ford.

Billy Cunningham, Charlie Scott,



Robert McAdoo and Bobby Jones have won that same honor in the past. It is no coincidence that so many Tar Heel players have been successful in the NBA. Carolina players seem to make the adjustment from college to the pros quite easily. Cotton Fitzsimmons, coach of the Kansas City Kings, pointed that out after working with Ford for just a few months.

"Give me someone who has played for Dean Smith and I know they'll play hard every night," said Fitzsimmons. "These North Carolina kids take losses seriously. They have a lot of pride and that's a good trait."

Of course, Smith's players have performed pretty well in college as well as in the pros. He has had more All-Americas than any other active coach. Ford was National Player of the Year four seasons ago.

A native of Emporia, Kansas, Smith attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played freshman football and varsity basketball and baseball there. He was a member of the Jayhawk basketball teams which won the national championship in 1952 and finished second in 1953.

Smith was assistant basketball coach and baseball coach at the Air Force Academy in 1958 when he was brought to Carolina by Frank McGuire, then the Tar Heel coach. When McGuire left to join the professional ranks in 1961, Smith was named the head coach.

Smith is a great good-will ambassador for the University. He is called upon to lecture at basketball clinics all over the world. He is currently president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches. His basketball camp for youngsters is so popular that he never advertises it. In fact, it is always filled by early March.

In his spare time Smith enjoys golf, tennis, music and reading books on a variety of subjects. He has a special interest in theology.

Smith has five children. Daughters Sandy and Mrs. Sharon Kepley are Carolina graduates, as is son Scott. He also has two young daughters, Kristen Caroline and Kelly Marie. Smith's wife, Linnea, is a physician at North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

Bill Guthridge

Dean Smith's chief assistant at the University of North Carolina is Bill Guthridge, one of the best coaches in college basketball.

Guthridge is beginning his 15th year on the Tar Heel staff. He has helped guide Carolina to a post-season tournament in each of his previous 14 seasons here. In that 14-year period, Carolina has been first or second in the Atlantic Coast Conference race each season, has won either the ACC regular-season or tournament title 10 times and won the 1971 National Invitation Tournament.

Bill has a thorough knowledge of all aspects of his profession—teaching, organizing, motivating and recruiting. He works closely with Smith in all phases of the Tar Heel program.

Guthridge's reputation is so outstanding that his name is usually mentioned every time there is a major college coaching vacancy. He has turned down several head coaching jobs and has had his name withdrawn from consideration for others.

"Bill is one of the top coaches in America, and that includes head coaches as well as assistants," says Smith. "His record as an assistant here and at Kansas State has been tremendous. He has made great contributions to both programs."

Guthridge was also a key factor in the United States' 1976 basketball triumph in the Summer Olympic Games. He served as Smith's assistant on that coaching staff and also scouted the Americans' opponents.

In addition to his work with the varsity, Guthridge also coached the Tar Heel freshman and junior varsity teams in his first six years here. He had a 72-25 record and won the Big Four championship four times, an outstanding feat in those days.

Smith gives him much of the credit for developing the players who have kept Carolina among the top basketball powers in the nation.

Guthridge has worked a great deal with both Carolina's offensive and defensive schemes. He is currently the Tar Heel shooting instructor. It is no coincidence that Carolina annually shoots better than 50 per cent from the field. In fact, the Tar Heels have the best shooting percentage of any team in America over the last dozen years.

A native of Parsons, Kan., Guthridge played his high school basketball for Harold Johnson, one of two brothers who were innovators of the zone press in the 1930's.

Bill went on to play collegiately at Kansas State in the years the Wildcats reigned as Big Eight champions—1958, 1959 and 1960. Based on his leadership, academic record and athletic accomplishments, he was chosen as one of the University's 13 most outstanding all-around seniors.

Following graduation, Guthridge coached for two years at Scott City (Kan.) High before returning to his alma mater as an assistant to the famed Tex Winter. During his time on the KSU staff, the Wildcats posted a 93-43 record, swept two Big Eight titles and advanced to the NCAA final four twice. Bill's first season in Chapel Hill was 1967-68.

Guthridge has thus been to the NCAA Final Four a total of eight times—five as an assistant at Carolina, twice as a member of the KSU staff and once as a player.

Besides working with Smith and Winter, two of the great names in coaching, Guthridge has also coached in Puerto Rico summer leagues for two years. He was once named coach-of-the-year and was invited to coach the Puerto Rican team in the 1968 Olympics. However, he had to turn that offer down because of his work at Carolina. He was contacted about coaching the Puerto Rican Olympic team in 1980, as well.

"Not only is Bill an astute basketball technician," says Smith, "but he is also an excellent teacher. He is highly respected by the players who have been through our program. He is sincere in his recruiting and I think this has made him a favorite of prospective student-athletes and their families. He is a man of great integrity."

Unlike many coaches, Guthridge says he actually enjoys recruiting.

"Some people say recruiting is undesirable," says Guthridge. "But my experiences have been very enjoyable. I think that has a lot to do with the type of young man which our university attracts."

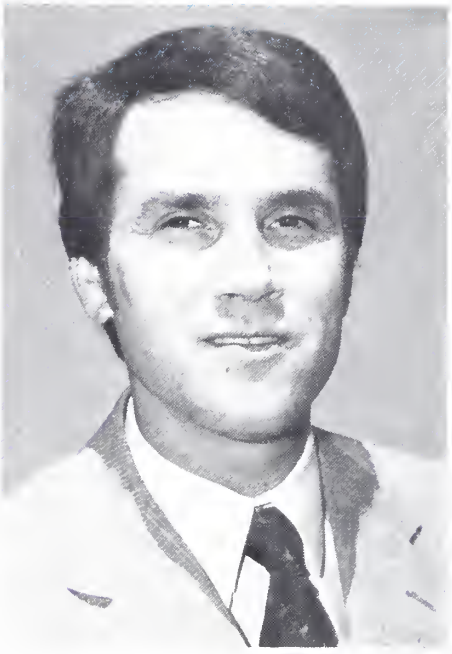
Guthridge, who got his B.S. in mathematics, has a master's degree in education and has taken courses at Carolina toward his PH.D.

While basketball is his game, Bill is also a close follower of other sports. When he can find some spare time, he likes to play golf.

Guthridge has an excellent sense of humor and is one of the most popular afterdinner speakers in the Carolina athletic department.

Bill and his wife, Leesie, have two sons, Jamie and Stuart, and a daughter, Megan.

Eddie Fogler



Eddie Fogler, who has been involved in some of Carolina's greatest basketball seasons, is beginning his ninth year as a Tar Heel assistant.

As a player, Fogler helped guide Carolina to two Atlantic Coast Conference championships. In his eight years as a coach here, the Tar Heels have won four more ACC Tournament titles and have finished first in the regular-season race four times.

Fogler knows the game very well and is considered an excellent teacher. He is also a top-flight recruiter and travels extensively for Coach Dean Smith.

"Eddie has unusual sincerity in recruiting and he is an excellent recruiter because of that," says Smith. "He has a genuine love for the University and, as a result, he can present it well."

Fogler has a solid background in fundamental basketball. He learned the game as a youngster in New York City against excellent competition. In fact, he is one of the few players ever to make the all-city team twice.

Eddie then played guard on Tar Heel teams from 1967 to 1970. The 1968 and 1969 teams won ACC championships and advanced to the NCAA Final Four. In his senior season the Tar Heels played in the National Invitation Tournament.

A playmaking guard, Fogler is considered one of the best ballhandlers and finest passers in Carolina history. He still ranks as one of the Tar Heels' all-time leaders in assists.

After receiving a bachelor's degree in mathematics in 1970, Fogler spent a year teaching and coaching at DeMatha High School in Washington, D.C. He was in charge of the DeMatha junior varsity.

He returned to Chapel Hill in the fall of 1971 as a graduate assistant. Fogler worked that season with the Carolina freshmen and also helped with scouting and recruiting. He earned his master's degree in 1972.

Fogler became a full-time staff member in 1973 and has made valuable contributions to the Tar Heel program.

"Eddie brings a bright mind to the coaching profession," says Smith. "He really was like an assistant coach on the floor in his playing days here when he quarterbacked some of our championship teams. He's a hard worker and has enthusiasm for the sport.

"If Bill Guthridge had taken one of the many head coaching jobs he's been offered, Eddie would be more recognized in the college basketball world. He will be a great college head coach."

Actually, Fogler's reputation has grown anyway. He has already received two head coaching offers from major universities. However, he says he's perfectly happy in Chapel Hill.

"Of course, I think about being a head coach," he says, "but that is in the future. Right now, I couldn't find a better place to work than here."

Fogler is one of the most popular members of the Carolina athletic staff. He enjoys all sports. Eddie is a bachelor.

Roy Williams

Roy Williams is beginning his fourth year as a part-time assistant on the North Carolina coaching staff.

In the past Williams has coached the junior varsity, worked with the varsity and assisted in recruiting. He has done an excellent job in all of those areas. In fact, he has had opportunities to take a top assistant's job at other schools, but has turned them down to remain at Carolina.

A native of Asheville, N.C., Williams played basketball and baseball at T.C. Roberson High. He then played freshman basketball at Carolina in 1968-69. He is a 1972 Tar Heel graduate and also got his master's degree here.

Prior to returning to Chapel Hill three years ago, Williams had spent five seasons as athletic director and head basketball coach at Owen High School in Swannanoa,N.C.

"Roy is a highly organized person who has all the characteristics of a great coach," says Dean Smith. "He genuinely cares a great deal for his players."

Williams is an avid golfer and shoots in the low 70's. Roy and his wife, Wanda, have a son, Scott, and a daughter, Kimberly.

Carmichael Auditorium

The home of the North Carolina Tar Heels is beautiful Carmichael Auditorium, or "Blue Heaven" as it is known by Carolina fans.

It is not exactly a heaven for visiting teams, however, as few of them win in Chapel Hill. In fact, the Tar Heel record at home stands at 131-16 since the arena opened in 1965.

Carmichael is always packed with overflow crowds of partisan, enthusiastic Tar Heel fans. Every home game is sold out before the season begins. The only way a non-student can get a ticket to Carmichael is to be a large contributor to the Educational Foundation. Even preseason scrimmages and exhibition games are sellouts.

Carmichael is located in the tall pine trees at the heart of the Carolina campus. It is considered one of the most beautiful basketball arenas in the country.

The auditorium has been the home of nine Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship teams, eight ACC Tournament winners, six NCAA regional champions and one National Invitation Tournament champion.

Students wait in long lines for a chance to see a game in Carmichael. In fact, they often sleep outside the auditorium the night before tickets are distributed for games.

Several hundred seats were added to Carmichael after the 1975-76 season, pushing capacity to 10,000.

Most of the Carolina athletic offices are located in Carmichael. Athletic Director John Swofford and Basketball Coach Dean Smith have their offices there. The halls are lined with sketches of Carolina's most outstanding athletes and there are five trophy cases containing awards and pictures from all sports.

The auditorium is named for the late William D. Carmichael, Jr., one of the most popular gentlemen ever to serve on the University campus. He left a lucrative Wall Street business to become associated with Carolina.

In Chapel Hill, Carmichael was comptroller and later vice-president of the Consolidated University. He also served for a long time as the Consolidated University's acting president. He died in 1961.

The auditorium adjoins Woollen Gymnasium, long-time site of varsity competition and physical education and intramural activities.

Carolina's Greatest Players

From Cobb to Rosenbluth, from the "Blind Bomber" to the "Kangaroo Kid," from Dillon to Ford. The list of basketball greats at the University of North Carolina is an all but endless one.

There have been scores of all-conference players, numerous All-Americas and four National Players of the Year. Many Tar Heel players have gone on to become superstars in professional basketball, as well.

All of this started back in 1911 when Carolina fielded its first team. Marvin Ritch captained that squad, but history does not tell us how great a player he was.

However, history does tell us a lot about Carolina's first great team—the 1924 national champions. The Tar Heels were 26-0 and were led by Cartwright Carmichael, Jack Cobb and Monk McDonald.

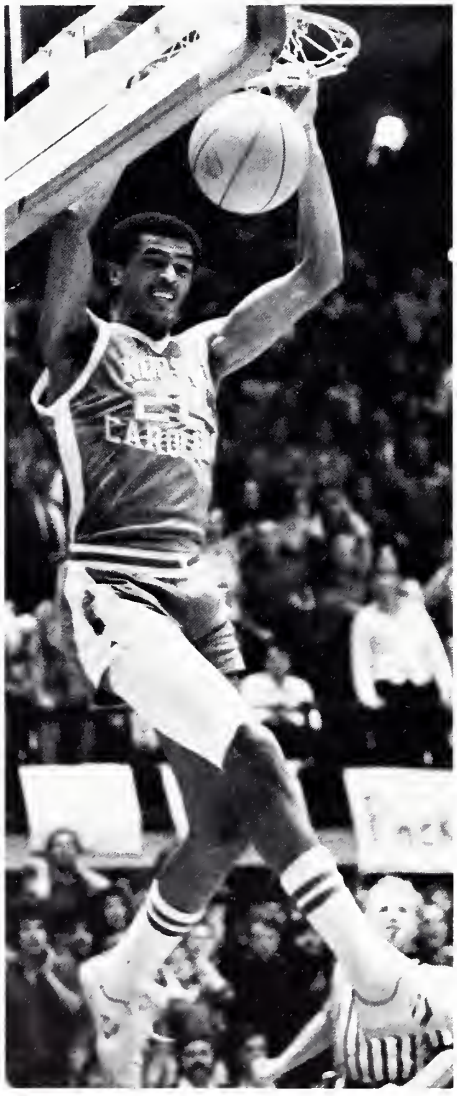
While the style of play has changed drastically since then, these men are still recognized as three of Carolina's greatest stars. Cobb, in fact, is a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. He was a three-time All-America and the Helms National Player of the Year in 1926. Carmichael was twice named All-America and McDonald was an all-conference performer.

Although the Tar Heels did not have an All-America like Cobb or Carmichael in the 1930's, there were many outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, Tom Alexander, Jim McCachren and Stewart (Snooks) Aitken made the All-Southern Conference team during that decade.

The big star of the early 1940's was George Glamack—"the Blind Bomber." Glamack had terrible eyesight and could barely see the basket while standing right under it. However, he developed the uncanny sense of knowing where the hoop was in relation to his position on the court. He perfected a hook shot which he used with either hand and with great accuracy. He was a two-time All-America and Helms Player of the Year in 1941. He's now in the Hall of Fame.

All-America John (Hook) Dillon was the star of the 1946 team which lost to Oklahoma A&M and big Bob Kurland in the national finals. Dillon, however, had an excellent supporting cast in Jim Jordan, Bones McKinney, Jim White and Bob Paxton. Jordan, in fact, had been an All-America in 1945 and the Most Valuable Player in the Southern Conference.

Eleven years later the Tar Heels again



Dudley Bradley

Mitch Kupchak

reached the national finals. This time they won the NCAA title, defeating Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas in a triple-overtime thriller that rates among the greatest college games ever.

Lennie Rosenbluth was the star of that team. He was named National Player of the Year as Carolina went 32-0. Other starters on that unforgettable team were Pete Brennan (an All-America the following season), Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Bob Cunningham.

The stars were many during the 1960's. Big Lee Shaffer was the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year in 1960. Shaffer was a great scorer and later was an all-star performer in the National Basketball Association with the Syracuse Nationals.

York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for the Tar Heels in the early part of the decade. Larese ranks as one of the greatest free throw shooters in Carolina history. Moe was a sensational all-around star and now coaches in the NBA.

A teammate of Moe's was Larry Brown, a diminutive guard who rates as one of Carolina's finest playmakers. Brown, now coaching in the NBA, played on the 1964 U.S. Olympic team which swept the Gold Medal.

Billy Cunningham, a three-time All-ACC selection, was the next star on the Carolina scene. He made All-America in 1965. The "Kangaroo Kid" went on to become a great professional star with the Philadelphia 76ers and now coaches that team.

Bob Lewis, a thin sharpshooter from Washington, D.C., followed Cunningham into the Tar Heel spotlight. He holds the Carolina single-game scoring record with 49 points against Florida State.

Next came Larry Miller, an All-America in 1968 when he led his team to the national finals where the Tar Heels lost to Lew Alcindor and UCLA. Miller twice was named the ACC Player of the Year. At 6-4 and 215 pounds, he was a rugged performer who dazzled crowds with driving layups and a great variety of shots.

Bill Bunting, Rusty Clark and Dick Grubar were starters on Carolina teams which won three straight ACC regular-season and tournament championships, swept three Eastern Regionals in a row and went to the final four in the nation.

Bunting had a great senior season and made All-ACC. Grubar was one of the most popular athletes to wear Carolina Blue and was a sparkling playmaker and defender. Clark was a tough defensive player and a great rebounder.

Then there was Charlie Scott, who excelled in every phase of the game. He made All-America in his senior season and was voted ACC Athlete of the Year. In 1968 he starred for the United States in the Olympic Games.

Three fine frontcourt players—Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuycik and Robert McAdoo—sparked Carolina teams in the early 1970's. Chamberlain was the Most Valuable Player in the 1971 National Invitation Tournament as the Tar Heels swept that title. Wuycik was a fine shooter and an aggressive rebounder. McAdoo had a great shooting touch and was an excellent rebounder. They led the Tar Heels to the NCAA's Final Four in 1972.

Another All-ACC performer in that period was George Karl, a three-year starter and a highly popular player. He amazed fans with his daring and diving on the court.

One of the most complete players to play the college game was Bobby Jones. Jones had great quickness and was a superb defender. He's one of the NBA's biggest stars.

Another great all-around player was Mitch Kupchak, the 1976 ACC Player of the Year. Mitch led the Tar Heels to a 25-4 record in his senior season and played a key role in the Washington Bullets' NBA championship in 1978.

Then came Walter Davis, John Kuester and Tommy LaGarde. They played on Carolina teams which won 98 games and lost only 23. All three were excellent defensive players and good shooters.

Davis, in fact, is regarded as one of the greatest clutch players in Carolina history. He was the NBA Rookie of the Year four seasons ago and is a two-time all pro. Kuester was the Most Valuable Player in both the ACC Tournament and the Eastern Regionals as a senior. LaGarde was an All-America on the team chosen by the pro coaches.

And, of course, there was Phil Ford. He was National Player of the Year as a senior and is the all-time Carolina leader in both scoring and assists. He has been called the best guard ever to play the college game. Phil was the NBA Rookie of the Year three seasons ago.

The most recent superstars have been Dudley Bradley, Mike O'Koren and Al Wood. Bradley was the ACC Tournament's MVP in 1979. A first-round pro draft choice, he rates as one of the greatest defensive players ever at Carolina... or anywhere else for that matter.

O'Koren, the sixth player chosen in the 1980 NBA draft, had a brilliant Carolina career. He and Miller are the only two Tar Heels to rank among the school's top 10 in scoring, rebounding and assists.

Wood capped a sensational career last season by leading Carolina to the NCAA championship game. Always a great shooter, Wood developed into a complete player in his time in Chapel Hill. He was the first senior selected in the NBA draft last spring.

The University

When the framers of North Carolina's first state constitution wrote in 1776 that "all useful learning" should be "duly encouraged and promoted in one or more universities," they could not have envisioned just how successful that charge would be met during the next two centuries at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Chartered in 1789, the year of George Washington's first inauguration, the University at Chapel Hill was the first state university in the nation to open its doors—in 1795—and was the only public university in the nation to award degrees to students in the 18th century.

The charter called for a central location in the state, and the place chosen was called New Hope Chapel, now Chapel Hill, where several Colonial roads converged. Legends hold that William Richardson Davie chose the location, and a massive tree, now called the Davie Poplar and still a campus landmark, helps keep the tale alive. But it is fact that Davie, the state's grand master of Masons, laid the cornerstone for Old East, the University's first building and the oldest state university building in the United States, on Oct. 12, 1793.

The University opened its doors on Jan. 15, 1795, and a month later its first student, Hinton James, arrived by foot. By March 1, there were 41 students and two professors. By 1860, only Yale University had a greater enrollment.

From that beginning, the growth, development and destinies of the state and its citizens have been inseparable from their University at Chapel Hill. The University has trained many of the state's leaders, including almost half its governors, as well as leaders in virtually all walks of life. Graduates attaining national prominence have included the 14th U.S. president, James K. Polk.

Carolina scientists made the first systematic astronomical observations in the nation (1827-31) and built the first observatory at a state university in North America (1832). In the 1820s, the University conducted the nation's first state geological survey.

Carolina was one of the few Southern universities to stay open during the War Between the States, but Reconstruction caused it to close (1870-75) for the only time in its history. Soon after re-opening, it established in 1877 the first summer school at a U.S. college or university.

The beautiful campus serves as a perfect setting for a relaxing discussion session. Professors often move their classes outdoors to take advantage of Carolina blue skies.

Programs in medicine and pharmacy followed in 1879, M.A. and Ph.D. degrees were established in 1883, and education courses were offered in 1885.

In 1897, women first were admitted to the University.

The decades following World War I were major periods of growth, and many of the University's 14 schools and more than 70 departments were established, including the schools of Social Work, Public Health, Library Science, Journalism, Business Administration, Dentistry, Nursing and graduate studies.

The Institute of Government was established in 1931 (it remains the largest and most diversified of the university-based governmental training and research organizations in the United States). The next year, Frank Porter Graham was elected the first president of the consolidated University of North Carolina, which then included Carolina, N.C. State University in Raleigh and Women's College, now the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Carolina is the largest institution in the University of North Carolina 16-campus system, which replaced the Consolidated University system in 1971. It is the largest and most comprehensive, both in the range of its programs at all levels and in the breadth of the specialized research and public service programs that it provides.

In 1949, the Morehead Planetarium was established, the first university-owned planetarium in the nation.

The last 30 years have seen the University grow, first to 10,000 students and then to more than 20,000 (including Evening College and special off-campus programs). Its 720-acre campus includes 127 permanent buildings with more than seven million square feet of space.

The University's growth has been accompanied by a continued emphasis to its commitment to excellence in education, research and public service.

Undergraduate, graduate and professional programs have received a wide range of honors. Disciplines from Latin American studies and physical therapy to recreation administration and law have been ranked as among the best in the nation. The last American Council on Education national study of graduate programs rated Carolina far more highly than any other state-supported institution in the Southeast.

The schools of Medicine, Dentistry and Nursing all recently received the most favorable accreditation reports.

The faculty of the University, 1,900 full-time and 2,150 in all, has been recognized for quality in many ways, through the selection of its members to prestigious organizations, election to national office in scholarly and professional societies and honors from peers. Their scholarly and research activities, according to the most recent University report, resulted in more than 7,000 publications, including books, journal articles, papers, reviews and abstracts.

The National Institutes of Health ranked the overall quality of research projects submitted to it by Carolina scientists for funding in 1980-81 as the seventh highest in the country (proposals made by School of Medicine faculty alone were ranked fifth), and other measures also have attested to the quality of research efforts at the University.

In 1980-81, the University attracted some 600 grants and contracts from government and private agencies totaling $64 million.

Out of that research in the past year came major findings including a new white blood cell that may have a role to play against cancer, allergies and parasites; a way to put bacteria to work manufacturing cellulose that could revolutionize the textile industry; an experimental drug that significantly reduces inflamation and pain of arthritis; and a group of compounds that seems to control the leading cause of respiratory infections among American children.

The University reaches every county in North Carolina with its educational and cultural programs. Thousands of citizens benefit from the more than 1,500 courses, institutes and seminars on campus and throughout the state. Each year about 100,000 persons visit the Morehead Planetarium, including more than 40,000 school children. The Ackland Art Museum, with some 6,000 works of art, has more than 37,000 persons each year enjoying its traveling exhibitions and permanent collection. The 307-acre N.C. Botanical Garden, with the largest labeled collection of native plants and herbs in the Southeast, is a natural classroom, laboratory and recreational area for thousands.

The N. C. Area Health Education Center Program, operated by the School of Medicine in partnership with the other Carolina health schools, has become a national model for decentralized health education since its founding in 1972. AHEC's mission is to increase the number of physicians and other health professionals in the state and to improve the public's access to health care services in all 100 counties. It has played a key role in increasing the number of primary care physicians in North Carolina to almost twice the national average.

The University's role as teacher has grown in importance with the increase in the number of students it teaches. Its 20,000 students, almost 70 percent undergraduate, 22 percent graduate and 8 percent professional, represent all 100 North Carolina counties, all 50 states, two U.S. territories and more than 60 foreign countries.

Ninety percent of the new freshmen entering Carolina were in the top 20 percent of their high school class. Undergraduate and graduate students annually receive numerous national awards, scholarships and fellowships.

At Carolina they are provided the best possible atmosphere for learning, from a library system ranked first in the Southeast to an athletic program that encompasses both excellence in varsity sports and opportunity for all in intramural sports activities and recreation facilities. The quality of the learning environment is needed to match the quality of the students themselves.

The Old Well, once the sole water supply for Old East and Old West buildings, is now a symbol of the University as it stands at the heart of the campus.

Those students leave Carolina to take key roles in every phase of public life. The state's governor, Jim Hunt, is an alumnus, as 30 of his predecessors have been. A vice president, an acting vice president and 14 cabinet members in the federal government have attended Carolina, as have four current North Carolina members of the House of Representatives and former Sen. Sam Ervin Jr.

Other alumni include Louise Fletcher, Academy Award-winning star of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest"; Derick Daniels, president of Playboy Enterprises Inc.; Jeff MacNelly, Pulitzer Prize-winning editorial cartoonist and creator of the "Shoe" comic strip; and national journalists such as Vermont Royster, David Brinkley, Tom Wicker, Charles Kuralt and Roger Mudd.

The University ranks 13th nationally among state universities and land grant colleges in the number of alumni who are chief executives of the 500 largest U.S. corporations.

In all, the University's alumni number more than 160,000 as of mid-1981, with 40 percent of that total having graduated in the last 15 years. More than 56 percent live in North Carolina.

In that respect, it has more than remained faithful to its founding fathers' charge to duly encourage and promote all useful learning for the betterment of humanity.

Old East, the oldest state university building in the nation and a National Historic Landmark, still is used for one of its original purposes—a dormitory. Old East's cornerstone was laid Oct. 12, 1793, a date celebrated each year as University Day.

Educational Foundation

One of the most important organizations in the Carolina Athletic Department is the University's Educational Foundation.

It is the Educational Foundation which makes possible all athletic scholarships awarded by Carolina.

As the Tar Heel sports program has grown through the years, the Foundation has done likewise. It currently has over 4,500 members who finance a scholarship program that costs $1,000,000 a year.

"Since its inauguration in 1938, the Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, for over 3,000 student-athletes," says Ernie Williamson, the Foundation's executive vice-president.

Williamson feels the overall bonus of being a Foundation member is helping a worthy young student obtain a college education. He says the high caliber young athlete who is awarded a scholarship is a great representative of the University.

Any donation to the Foundation is welcome. However, membership in the Rams Club is restricted to those who contribute $150 or more.

Carolina was one of the first schools in the nation to set up an endowment program for athletics. This program was started in 1968 and has already surpassed the $6,000,000 mark.

The endowment program consists of $50,000 endowed scholarships, life memberships of $10,000 and $20,000, wills and bequests and a new dimension—a pooled income fund. Under the pooled income plan, a member gives a principal sum to the Foundation and then receives the interest off that during the remainder of his life.

A special room on the south wing of Kenan Fieldhouse serves as a meeting place for Rams and their families. This area is open two hours before football games and provides a lounge and picnic area for those who come early.

The Foundation operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Foundation administrative staff was enlarged last year with Moyer Smith, John Cherry and Bill Lam taking new responsibilities. Along with Williamson, Mary Baggett, Kaye Koenig and Jean Gunter, they have made the Foundation better able to serve its members.

"We couldn't have the type program we do without the Educational Foundation membership," says Athletic Director John Swofford. "I think the staff additions we made last year will enable us to do a better job for our members."

Ernie Williamson

The man who stands at the helm of the Educational Foundation is popular Ernie Williamson, the executive vice-president.

The former star Carolina tackle is one of the most active individuals on the Tar Heel sports scene. He is constantly on the go—talking with Foundation members, speaking to prospective members or avidly following all of Carolina's athletic teams.

Williamson is a Carolina graduate with A.B. and M.A. degrees. The native of Crewe, Va., played one season of football here under Carl Snavely and was regarded as an outstanding tackle.

He was lured away to professional football and played with New York and Washington before a knee injury ended his career.

Williamson returned to Chapel Hill to finish work on his degrees and then went to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He was an assistant coach there for two years and head coach for three seasons.

He returned to Carolina in 1957 to accept his present position. At one time he also served as a recruiter for the football program.

Williamson is currently serving his third term as president of the National Association of Athletic Fund-Raisers.

Ernie is married to the former Elva Smith of Lawrenceville, Va. They have a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Carole.
